Science Homework

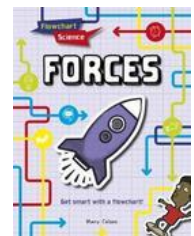

In science, we are being physicists and investigating forces. This week we have looked at friction (grip) and when we DO want friction – and when we DON'T. For homework, look at a moving vehicle (it could be a bike, a car or a roller skate for example). Draw and label its parts and talk about where it NEEDS friction (eg brakes and tyres) and where it doesn't (engine parts).

Book Recommendation

This book, explores the science of forces such as gravity and friction in a fun way.
